What are Exosomes?

EXOSOMES OFFER THE POTENTIAL TO OVERCOME KEY LIMITATIONS OF CELL THERAPY.

What are Exosomes?

Exosomes are tiny vesicles released from stem cells that act as the brain or messenger for cellular repair to target healing and regeneration. Unlike stem cells, they contain no nucleus or DNA and therefore are very safe.

What Do Exosomes Do?

- Cellular repair is a complex symphony of different cells coordinating a response to the many functions that are necessary.
- Stem cells act as the director for these functions and because exosomes are secreted by stem cells they are the brains of cellular regeneration and respond to what is needed influencing their environment and the cells around them.
- When cells are injured or aging, they release distress signals, these helper cells known as exosomes and used to repair the cell.

Possible Benefits of Exosome IV Therapy

- Reducing pain, hair loss, migraines, and restoring physical function and mobility.
- Improving your body's overall healing ability and accelerating your recovery following surgery.
- Alleviate symptoms related to autoimmune diseases, fibromyalgia, anti-aging, and joint repair (arthritis, injury).
- Increase the feeling of focus and energy and improvement of skin texture and appearance.

How Long is the Procedure?

It is the same time frame as one of our normal infusions (20-45 minutes) and can also be done as a push which only takes a few minutes. Everyone is different, some people may feel the effects immediately while others may feel them gradually over time. Some clients prefer to get the Exosome IV therapy first and then follow this service with a regular IV cocktail from our menu.
